As the Director of the Eleanor Crowder Bjoring Center for Nursing Historical Inquiry, it is my pleasure to welcome you to the 21st annual meeting of the Southern Association for the History of Medicine and Science (SAHMS) and the Eleanor Crowder Bjoring Center for Nursing Historical Inquiry (ECBCNHI) 4th Agnes Dillon Randolph International Nursing History Conference at the University of Virginia. In 1991, Dr. Barbara Brodie, our founding Director, and Drs. Arlene Keeling and Sylvia Rinker gathered together to establish what at first was called the Center for Nursing Historical Inquiry. After Dr. Eleanor Crowder Bjoring endowed the Center with her generous gift in 2008, it was renamed after her.

The Center is committed to our new UVA President Jim Ryan’s vision to build bridges between academic disciplines, between people of different backgrounds, and between the University of Virginia and the Charlottesville community. Our joint SAHMS/ECBCNHI program will make important connections to scholarship across a variety of disciplines and will amplify our commitment to equity and justice on the University of Virginia Grounds and beyond.

AGNES DILLON RANDOLPH

(1875-1930)

One of Virginia’s eminent nurse leaders, Agnes Dillon Randolph possessed the intelligence, vision, and political acumen to help develop nursing into an essential health care profession and to lead the state in the creation of tuberculosis services for its ill citizens. Miss Randolph, an 1898 graduate of Richmond’s Old Dominion Hospital Training School, was influential in getting Virginia’s first nurse licensure law passed in 1903. Her knowledge of the plight of tuberculosis patients led her to help found the Virginia Tuberculosis Association in 1912, and from 1914 to 1919 she served as one of its most energetic executive directors. In 1921, after she became the state’s first Tuberculosis Nurse Consultant, Miss Randolph brought her determination and expertise to bear in influencing legislators to construct state supported sanitariums and community health services.

Miss Randolph’s experience as a professional nurse convinced her that nursing preparation needed to reside in institutions of higher education. In 1923 she spearheaded the Graduate Nurses’ Association of Virginia campaign to raise $50,000 to endow a Chair of Nursing at the University of Virginia, the institution founded by her great-grandfather Thomas Jefferson. In 1928 these funds were used to support the opening of the Sadie Heath Cabaniss School of Nursing Education, the South’s first graduate nursing program. Agnes Dillon Randolph’s commitment to the improvement of health care for generations of citizens remains her legacy to professional nursing and the Commonwealth of Virginia.

The Eleanor Crowder Bjoring Center for Nursing Historical Inquiry gives the Agnes Dillon Randolph award to recognize distinguished contributions by a scholar of nursing history.

Keynote Speakers

Sioban Nelson, PhD, RN, FAAN
Professor of Nursing, University of Toronto
2019 Agnes Dillon Randolph Award Recipient

Playing Nurse: Exploring Material Culture for a Non-subject Centered History of Nursing

Dr. Sioban Nelson is a leading nursing scholar. She has published nine books (seven edited or coauthored collections and two monographs), including the acclaimed Say Little, Do Much: Nursing, Nuns, and Hospitals in the Nineteenth Century. With Suzanne Gordon, she edited the prize-winning Complexities of Care: Nursing Reconsidered, a ground-breaking work on the challenges facing contemporary nursing. Notes on Nightingale: The Influence and Legacy of a Nursing Icon (co-edited with Anne Marie Rafferty), honours the centenary of Florence Nightingale’s death.

Dr. Nelson served as editor-in-chief of the journal Nursing Inquiry for 12 years. Currently, she is co-editor of the interdisciplinary Culture and Politics of Health Care Work series for Cornell University Press. She was a commissioner on the Canadian Nurses Association National Expert Commission for the Future of the Health Care System that launched the A Nursing Call to Action report in June 2012. Dr. Nelson was member of the Board of the Canadian Association of Schools of Nursing, and co-chair of the Assessment Committee of the Canadian Academy of Health Sciences on Scope of Practice in the Health Professions and lead author on the 2014 assessment report. She is the former Head of the School of Nursing at the University of Melbourne, Australia (2004-5), and served as Dean of the Lawrence S Bloomberg Faculty of Nursing at the University of Toronto from 2005-13. She served as Vice Provost Faculty and Academic Life (2014-18) and Vice Provost Academic Programs (2013-18) at the University of Toronto. She is a fellow of the American Academy of Nurses and the Canadian Academy of Health Sciences. She is currently a member of the Quality Council of Ontario and serves as a board member of the Canadian Academy of Health Sciences.

Her current research interests include the history of nursing and material culture, the impact of the Rockefeller Foundation on global nursing in the mid-20th century and the transnational history of nursing. She is working on a general history of nursing.
Peter Hobbins, PhD
University of Sydney

“The Westerners’ regulations are really useless”: Unpicking Detention, Compulsion, Accommodation, and Discrimination in Quarantine

Dr. Peter Hobbins is a senior research fellow in the Department of History at the University of Sydney, Australia. As a historian of science, technology and medicine, his interests have spanned snakebite to smallpox, and sailing ships to aircraft accidents. Through 2013–16, he worked with a team of historians and archaeologists to document nearly 1600 carvings left by detainees at Sydney’s North Head Quarantine Station over 1835 to 1984. In addition to a range of cross-disciplinary academic publications, Peter was lead author on the project’s 2016 trade book, Stories from the Sandstone: Quarantine Inscriptions from Australia’s Immigrant Past won a Premier’s History Award and is shortlisted for the Frank Broeze Memorial Maritime History Prize. In 2017 Peter also published an academic monograph with Manchester University Press, Venomous Encounters: Snakes, Vivisection and Scientific Medicine in Colonial Australia. While his current postdoctoral project focuses on aviation safety in Australia over 1920–70, he is also leading an initiative that encourages community historians to research and commemorate the 1918–19 influenza pandemic.

Shauna Devine, PhD
Assistant Professor Schulich School of Medicine and the Department of History and Associate Research Professor, Department of History, Western University

And the Doctors Came Home: Smallpox and the Science of Bacteriology in the Post-Civil War South

Dr. Shauna Devine is an historian of Civil War and American medicine. She has a Ph.D in medical history and currently holds a joint appointment as an assistant professor at the Schulich School of Medicine and as an associate research professor in the Department of History at Western University. She also sits on the Board of Directors for the National Museum of Civil War Medicine. Devine has published a number of articles on the Civil War and American medicine, and her first book entitled, Learning from the Wounded: The Civil War and the Rise of American Medical Science (University of North Carolina Press, 2014), examines the development of scientific medicine during the American Civil War and the impact of the War’s events on American medicine. Learning from the Wounded received a number of awards including the prestigious Tom Watson Brown Book Award from the Society of Civil War Historians and the Watson-Brown Foundation, the Wiley-Silver Prize from the Center for Civil War Research at the University of Mississippi, and the book was named a Choice Outstanding Academic Title of 2015. An active public speaker she has given presentations at locations such as the Army Medical Department and School, Harvard University Medical School, Duke University, The Reynold’s Lecture at the University of Alabama, The Center for Civil War Research Ole Miss, The University of Chicago Medical School, the National Institutes of Health, the University of Virginia School of Medicine and she has appeared on C-Span. She is currently working on a second book length project, which investigates the history of science, medicine, and medical education in the American South during the Civil War and Reconstruction.
